“Independence and Balance Equals Freedom”

Gal 5:13-14: “For you were called to freedom, brothers (and sisters). Only do not use your freedom as an opportunity for the flesh, but through love serve one another. For the whole law is fulfilled in one word: “You shall love your neighbor as yourself.”

As North Americans living in the land of the free, we tend to associate the month of July as our nation's birth month. We celebrate the sentiment of freedom being as a God given right to those who legally live in this country. We wear the privilege of freedom as part of our DNA with the built-in expectations of independent thinking and behaving coming as a guaranteed subset of qualities within our cultural makeup. This being said, we are now facing a cultural change with the global influx of cultures that are coloring and threatening to change our landscape of foundational principles many of us “old timers” have grown up with and have accepted without question. This is not such a bad thing. It is a new thing which can offer freedom within us if we entertain the maturity calling to consciously review. Growth and maturity can be a scary thing, especially when we cease to seek understanding. After all, being imprisoned for stubbornness is not a license to obtaining freedom.

As we can see from our scripture, Jesus calls us to live a life in balance. This way of life takes practice and mindfulness each breath we take, to live in the present, aware of self and allowing God to work within. Often in our country, we have historically looked outward for the advantages we wish to gain and the lifestyle we desire to freely live with independent spirit and rights. Yet, it seems to me, that living with this careless sense of ownership has left us at a scriptural disadvantage to our spiritual development. Jesus teaches us followers of The Way are those who seek balance in life and give over the war within to God seeking peace and submission for the balance in life. In our country, this message tends to get drowned out with all the posturing and positioning of those who have power and seek to win the fight for the advantages sought for at the time of perceived need. In this space comes the imbalance of human wealth and health within the principles Christ refers to for the obtaining of The Greater meaning in our lives. Our lives on this earth are here for the practicing to become closer and more in balance with The More that which we are created to become. All else is just tools to help us get to this place. How we use our time, place and space is the determining factor in how well we find balance which leads to ultimately our eternal everlasting freedom. We are called to be independent thinkers for the individual paths we are to take for enlightened healing, releasing us from the overprotecting and narrowed eyesight of our former past. In God, we are released into freedom and new life. A true life of independence and balanced fullness. A life in this world but not of it.

So, as a church family, let us mindfully consider what it means to rethink what it means to be a Christian in the country we live in within today's landscape and global influences. May we consciously accept the calling of God's enlightened wisdom into our hearts as we mature with our country in celebrating another year of existence and growing. May we prayerfully reflect and listen to the message of how it is we can obtain balance within. May we let the balance within restore to us and others the path for recovery of the Good News message Jesus came to teach. In this spirit may we let the reawakening and rebirth of us all for the accepting of God's healing saving grace. May this become our birthday wish for one another as we continue to work on our balanced living within the new sights of understanding and realities which impact our way of life. May we trust in God's way to let freedom ring.

Blessings to All!

Pastor Julie 😊
